FOREWORD

The tomato varietal names in this list printed in italics are the ones most largely used at present or are new varieties of proven merit gaining in favor.

Many of the other varieties which we print in plain Roman type are becoming obsolete. We believe that the seed trade and the planter would in most cases be better off if they could be eliminated. This is because they are in most cases inferior in some one or more points; because of the very large increase in care and cash cost in growing and handling the smaller quantities; and because of the confusion in a seed buyer's mind in trying to select suitable varieties from too long a list.

You will note some variations in our prices from those of the previous year. We have thoroughly studied our yields of each variety for the last several years, and also from past experience, have tabulated estimated itemized costs per acre of producing different varieties of tomato. On these figures as far as possible we are basing our prices for 1929.

This definite plan was used for the first time in compiling our 1928 prices and we feel that our customers have appreciated the stand we have taken on pricing, because of the volume of business which was placed with us.

It is our idea to use this plan in compiling future prices, and the prices from year to year on this basis will show only slight variations, except for disturbing economic conditions which may appear.

We hope that this arrangement will meet with your approval and that we may continue to serve you as in the past.
